Description, After the occupation of Yugoslavia in the World War II, the Communist Government in Yugoslavia confiscated all private property, and the peasants were not allowed to keep any, of course. Most of the farmers left the field to search for food and shelter. Consequently, some people had to work in the cities as a form of forced labor, the most common work being part time farming, or even as factory workers. Some of them were sent to the infamous camps in the mountains where many lost their lives. The "Crno Jagnje i Sivi Soko Rebeka Vest 1941" is a book published during the World War II, with a historical background, focusing on the atmosphere of the time, the first people's liberation war, and the motivation behind the resistance.

Only people who left their land in the open field had a chance to survive in this situation. They had to hide themselves in the mountain, living in constant fear of the fascist Ustashas (Serbian State Guard and police). There are many bad stories, for example that some girls were kidnapped and raped, or that some boys were sent to the Nazi camps. The book also contains a lot of information on the war, its background, the politics, and the life on the camps. People have to change their language in order to survive in the camps, because most of them were from the Vojvodina and Titograd (Titograd is now known as Novi Sad).

The book has a lot of historical facts from the National Liberation War in Yugoslavia, especially the beginning, and the motivation for the struggle, the fight against the Ustashas. The book is in Serbian, but it is in the native dialect of the Vojvodina, which is closer to the language spoken in Novi Sad, where the book was written. Because of the size and the high level of information, I decided to put the complete book online. If you want to read the original, just go to the link above and you will be redirected to the book's "PDF" version. I hope you enjoy reading this book and be inspired by the history of Yugoslavia.
